W. G. Admond, who was for two years county agent here but has been county agent of McMinn county with headquarters at Athens, has been seriously sick with typhoid the confined him to his room for six weeks. The many friends of Dr. F. J. Upham will be pleased to learn that he is much improved over a week ago. His trouble is an affection of the thyroid gland of his neck on the left side. When in Nashville he received an extensive radium treatment, which the doctors assured him would require repetition two months later, and that while the relief would come slowly they felt confident that the treatment would result favorably. Thus far his condition is better than he had expected and should his condition continue to improve as rapidly as it has the past week or two, he will likely be able to attend in part to his office work in a few weeks, with the assurance of a complete recovery. He realizes that the surest road to full recovery is by extreme care, quite and great caution when he shall again be able to begin attending to business.

Gleam of Light Shines Thru the War Clouds Over the Near East.

Within the week just passed, the war clouds hung low and looked very black around Constantinople and it seemed that nothing less than a miracle could prevent a clash between the Turks and English troops.

England demanded that the Turks withdraw from the neutral zone, most of which they had occupied over the protest of Great Britain, but the Turk declined to remove troops from the neutral zone unless England would do the same and make the move first. England steadfastly demanded that the Dardanelles, Sea of Marmora and the Bosphorus should be free and open to all nations. Turkey, backed by Russia, claimed that the disposition of that important water sphere should be settled jointly by the allies and the nations that touched those waters which meant Russia, especially, along with Turkey. France stood with England.

After several days in which clashes were eminent almost every hour, an agreement was arranged for a conference of the allies and Turkey at Mudania, a Turk seaport, yesterday. It is now felt that an adjustment will be made on the basis of the Turk getting Constantinople, Adrianople and a part of Thrace, with the Dardanelles and those waters free to all vessels, which has been the main contention of England from the first.

King Constantine, of Greece, has abdicated in favor of his son, who has been declared king with the title of George I. The Shay of Turkey has also given up the throne and Kemal Pasha is now regarded stronger than before.

"NO WOMAN KNOWS"

"THE AMAZING STORY OF FANNY HERSELF"

Fanny is a typical American girl, although an odd mixture of book-worm and tomboy. Her parents own a small drygoods and notion store in a little middle-western town. The father dies, leaving the mother to run the business. She and Fanny scrimp and save so that the son, Theodore, can study the violin in Europe.

This boy breaks his mother's heart by marrying a music hall dancer in Vienna. When the mother dies, Fanny, through anger and realization of her futile years of sacrifice, breaks away from home and becomes a highly efficient business woman—the head of a department in a Chicago mail-order house.

Her soul is constantly torn between two forces, the materialistic and the spiritual. Fenger, the genius-like executive of the mail order house, spurs her to material success. Heyl, her boyhood playmate, and now a brilliant newspaper man, tries to persuade her to let her spiritual side—the old Fanny herself—come to the surface again.

Fanny becomes herself again when her brother Theodore returns from Europe with his baby daughter. His wife had run away. Fanny takes him in, puts him on his feet and, with Fenger's help, arranges for his American debut. It is a great success. Then he disappears—to go back to his wife again.

This is the last straw for Fanny. Her better nature is again submerged in business fatalism. She forgives Fenger for certain unwelcome attentions towards her and is on the point of running away with him, despite his invalid wife, when Heyl finally is victorious in his fight to make her give in to her better impulses.

Fanny, again her lovable, unmaterialistic, sympathetic self, finally nestles into Heyl's arms, at last secure in the knowledge of her future love and happiness
